"What Our Students Say"

Meet Delia Velasquez! She is a Health Science major in the Class of 2022.

"My advice to parents would be to expect to hear from your children through text more often and be sure to give them their space as college is the time to allow students to explore the vast opportunities presented to them. However, also expect that call when your child is struggling with something whether they haven't adjusted to the college lifestyle or maybe they haven't made any friends. Be supportive and compassionate, most of all hear them out. College is a time to allow students to find out who they are and what they are truly passionate about. Mistakes are bound to happen and most often then not the root of anxiety often comes from the fear of disappointing family. Ease up on your children as transitioning to college is never easy. Most of all just being there when needed and providing support at all times makes the best experience for your child!"
