You will see this error message. Click on “Enroll.”

The screenshot shows a Blackboard interface for a course titled "Teacher Education State Code Hygiene Test". A red banner at the top indicates an "Error". The error message reads: "Either you are not logged in or you do not have the appropriate privileges to perform this action. For reference, the Error ID is 563f4746-1af5-4c43-8ca3-97edbc2723e2. Friday, January 8, 2021 2:41:12 PM EST". In the left-hand navigation menu, there is a green "+ Enroll" button with a pink arrow pointing to it.

Self Enrollment

The screenshot shows a self-enrollment confirmation prompt. At the top, it says "ENROLL IN COURSE: TEACHER EDUCATION STATE CODE HYGIENE TEST (EDUC-HYGIENE-TEST)". Below this, it lists the instructor: "Tucker Rowlinson, Karin Kallert, Claudine Keenan". The description is "Description:" and the categories are "Education: Higher Education". At the bottom, there is a note: "Click Submit to proceed." and two buttons: "Cancel" and "Submit".

You'll then be able to access the test:

The screenshot shows the Blackboard interface for the "NJ State Code Hygiene Test". The left-hand navigation menu lists "Teacher Education State Code Hygiene Test", "Test", and "Print State Code Hygiene Test". The main content area shows a document icon next to the title "NJ State Code Hygiene Test" and the text: "Stockton University. This test is the NJ State Code Hygiene Test formerly known as Health Test or State Code Exam. You will need this for entry into our Education program and to be certified as teacher in NJ."
