Hammonton, NJ- High school-aged students from Hammonton will have the opportunity to learn in a college setting through The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey's Miniversity program at its Kramer Hall instructional site.

The Miniversity program connects high school students with area professionals to sample a variety of co-curricular offerings ranging from life skills to career choices at Kramer Hall. Sessions generally run for an hour and are followed by a question and answer period. The program is sponsored by the Office of the Provost, Academic Affairs and Student Affairs.

The first Miniversity program will take place on Tuesday, Oct. 15, 2013 at 3 p.m. and features Stockton graduate Joseph A. Lombardo, Esquire, of Lombardo Law Offices in Hammonton. Lombardo will deliver a presentation titled "Becoming a Purposeful Lawyer: The Personal Journey of a Stockton Graduate."

The program will take place at Kramer Hall, located at 30 Front Street, in room 109.

"The students will experience firsthand the value of developing their skills outside of the classroom in a college environment as a means to complement their academic preparedness for college," said Dr. Eileen Conran-Folks, manager of instructional sites.

The event is free and open to high school students. To reserve a seat, please contact Nancy Fiedler by emailing Nancy.Fiedler@Stockton.edu or calling 609-626-3837.
